To whom it may concern,

This is a letter of recommendation for David James. David works in my organization at Dealerspan serving as an Engineer on the Development Team.

David is responsible for developing portions of a very complex web based application. David has taken on some very challenging projects and has done an excellent job from requirements gathering and project organization all the way through development and implementation.

Here at Dealerspan, David is best known for being highly organized and methodical in his approach. His work is innovative and technically sound. He is a self starter and is very conscientious about both schedule and quality. David does an excellent job of communicating progress to the team and to management and he requires very little supervision. He is consistent, reliable, and responsible.

David brings to the table a strong work ethic, a high level of expertise, and a sincere passion for his work. He is comfortable and effective in either a team environment or working alone on a project. I am confident that he will be a significant contributor to any organization that he works with.

Feel free to contact me if you require any additional information regarding David's qualifications and contributions to Dealerspan.

Sincerely,

Aaron Ramage
Manager
